Write an essay

(i) my Madrasa.

(ii) my Best friend.

"My Madrasa"

I study in the Jamia Ghousia Mehria Multan. It is situated outside the city. It has three gates and a long boundary wall. It is L-shaped. It has three big grassy grounds and one small grassy ground where the students play games. It has a big mosque at the design of Shahi masjid Lahore where students offer prayers. It has more than one hundred big rooms. All the rooms are airy and ventilated. It has a big library which is about 7,000 books.

About 1200 students read in our madrasa. 40 teachers work in our madrasa. They are all able. Due to their hard work our school shows hundred percent results every year. Our head master is polite man but he is man of principle.

Essay # 02

My Friend

"A friend is need is a friend indeed"

I have many friends but I like Suhail most of them all. He is the monitor of my class. He controls the class in the absence of the teacher.

He is my next door neighbour. He is 17 years old. We play and study together. We go to school together.

He gets up early in the morning and calls on me to offer Fajar Prayer. After this he goes out for a walk daily. He is active smart and clean his habits. He always speaks truth. He wears neat and clean clothes. He is good in Arabic. His hand writing is very neat. He is honest and respects his elders. All the teachers of my school like him. I am proud of my friend.

Summary of the Poem

"Daffodils"

Once, Wordsworth was enjoying a countryside trip. He saw some daffodils growing in cluster on the bank of lake under the trees. They were thick and large in number. They are moving to and fro and tossing their heads in the breeze. They were dancing and shining like stars in the sky. He was delighted to see this charming sight. It left a lasting and deep impression on him. Whenever he is in pensive and reflective mood, he recalls the sight and is overjoyed. He begins to dance in delight. His cares and worries are suspended for the time being. It has become a permanent source of joy for him. He is spell bound when he recalls the sight and is transported to that golden moment.
